

Act Now to Protect Against Potential Cyberattacks

March 22, 2022

According to evolving intelligence, Russia may be exploring options to engage in malicious cyber activity against the United States in response to the unprecedented economic sanctions the U.S. Government has imposed.

The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) has compiled a catalog of free services to help organizations, regardless of size, adopt a heightened posture when it comes to cybersecurity and protecting their most critical assets.

The U.S. Government will continue to provide resources and tools to the private sector, including via CISA's Shields-Up campaign.

Organizations are asked to immediately report anomalous cyber activity and/or cyber incidents to report@cisa.gov or 888-282-0870.
