Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update

Due to the increasing number of coronavirus disease (COVID-19) cases reported throughout the world, including the United States, municipalities are understandably concerned about their ability to maintain governmental services and response capabilities if the virus should affect their workforce. To keep Americans apprised of the most up-to-date information, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) have published a website and several shareable information sheets that provide guidance and resources for individuals and organizations.
